INTRODUCTION OF TANJUNG AGAS PORT IN MALAYSIA

The Tanjung Agas Port project is situated in the East Coast Economic Zone of Malaysia with a land area of 1,800 hectares and a total investment of USD 40 billion in a construction period spanning 15 years. The project is divided into three stages of construction, encompassing functional areas such as ship-repair zone, dock area, production & processing area, commercial area and more.

SHIP SERVICE AREA

Ship service area is the main area for ships to carry out overhaul and replenishment of materials. By providing efficient maintenance services, the area can help to reduce the downtime of ships due to breakdowns and thus improve the operational efficiency of the port. At the same time, by providing repair and maintenance services for international ships, it can ensure that the ships can play a greater role in international trade and logistics.

PORT DOCK AREA

Port dock area is a comprehensive area which includes container dock area, grain dock area, general bulk cargo dock area, oil dock area, LNG dock area, storage and refining area, bonded area and other functional areas. These areas cooperate and support the overall operation and function realization of the port docks.

PRODUCTION & PROCESSING AREA

This area undertakes conventional production and processing tasks, as well as high-end production and manufacturing tasks, including but not limited to natural gas chemical, fine chemical, energy and bio chemical, marine engineering equipment manufacturing, and inorganic chemical, through investment promotion.

BUSINESS AREA

This area is designed for commercial and trade services, financial services, information services, leisure and entertainment, as well as business offices. It provides strong support for the prosperous development of the port and the economic and social development of the surrounding areas.
